RIESLING 2018

This German variety is not very known in Chile but has shown excellent results when produced in cool climates like Lo Abarca. In our vineyards 60% of the grapes harvested come from slopes of granitic soils, the other 40% come from sandy soils located in the lowest areas of the vineyard. The wine is silky on the palate with a great body and refreshing acidity that balances the residual sugar. This off-dry style leaves the mouth salivate and invites you to have another glass.

VINIFICATION

The grapes are selected by hand, separating them from unwanted green materials. The grapes are whole bunch pressed for 3 hours. The wine is racked off from the lees and fermented at 12-14 °C with commercial yeast for 3 weeks. Fermentation stops naturally to balance the ratio of sugar and acidity. The wine does not pass through oak barrels. No acidity correction.
